

THE LAST ONE

It's a good one, too. The coming Friday is the last Friday in July. We shall mark it by our usual wide and discriminating cut. Perhaps it may suit you better than usual. At any rate, it is worth your while to look at the list of this

Special Friday Sale

Misses' Black French Ribbed Hose, sizes 6 to 8 1/2 for 15c, worth from 35c to 50c.
Ladies' Dressing Vests at 15c, cheap at 50c.
Ladies' Balbriggan Vests, long and short sleeves, at 25c.
Ladies' French Ribbed Jersey Vests, long and short sleeves, at 45c, worth 75c.
Special bargains in Hosiery.
Half-Wool Domestic Challies, 10c.
Best quality French Challies, regular price 65c, today 35c and 45c.
Remnants French Satens, Challies, Lawns, Batiste, Light Wool Dress Goods, very cheap.
Good Lawns, 3c.
Our Figured India Silks at cost.
White Goods at 12 1/2c, worth 20c.
White Goods at 5 1/2c, worth 10c.
A lot of slightly soiled Towels at half price.
Special sale of 50 dozen Gentlemen's Hemstitched Colored Bordered Handkerchiefs at 10c, worth 20c.
25 dozen "R. & G." Corsets at 98c, worth $1.25.
All our 45-inch Flouncings marked away down below cost. Now is the time to get a White Dress at your own price.

L. S. AYRES & CO

REMOVED

— TO —
33

South Meridian St

H. LIEBER & CO.'S

ART EMPORIUM

NEW BOOKS

American Statesmen Series:
Martin Van Buren. By Edward M. Shepard.....$1.00
Lippincott's Magazine for August. Complete novel, "Mammon," by Maud Howe.....25

For Sale by
THE BOWEN-MERRILL CO

On account of laying a new floor our store will be

CLOSED
Friday and Saturday,
July 27 and 28.

WM. H. ERLE
4 W. Wash. Established 1862.

The New York Store

Is still showing excellent values in

SILK UMBRELLAS

In assorted handles of

OXIDIZED SILVER, GOLD, EBONY

AND ACACIA WOOD.

Prices ranging from.....$1.50 to $14

THE TWO BRANDS,

'VELOUTINE' and 'CREFELD'

Especially manufactured for our trade, will not

CRACK or FADE.

Veloutine—Prices.....$3.50 to $5
Crefeld—Prices.....500 to 14

We recommend these goods to our customers.

PRICES ALWAYS IN PLAIN FIGURES.

PETTIS, BASSETT & CO

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

MINOR CITY MATTERS.

To-Day's Doings.

HARRISON RECEPTIONS. Kosciusko county and Hamilton Co. afternoon, University Park.

BALLOON ASCENSION AND RACING. Fair grounds, afternoon and evening.

BATTLE OF ATLANTA CYCLOPAMA. Market street, between Illinois and Tennessee streets.

Local News Notes.

The Tippecanoe Club did not furnish hard rider to the Paris club, at lunch, Wednesday. It was good coffee, so says one of the committee.

The cancer-jawed cow from which a family on Iowa street was selling milk was killed yesterday by direction of Secretary Harp, of the City Board of Health.

The South Calvary Baptist Church, colored, on the corner of Maple and Morris streets, has been completed. The dedication services will occur the first Sunday in September.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to Henry C. Bode and Olive Love, James M. Clements and Fannie G. Arnold, James M. Stuck and Emma M. Weber, William Morgan and Maranda E. Muzzy, John R. Cain and Cynthia A. Williamson, Victor Heller and Lena Weber.

THEY ADJOURNED IN PEACE

After Two Days' Session a Few Colored Men Indorse Cleveland's Democracy.

Milton Turner, Kept Out of the Chair, Surrenders to His Enemies When He Obtained Control of the Executive Committee.

The few colored men who came to Indianapolis at the request of the national Democratic committee to inaugurate a movement that it was hoped would break the practically solid ranks of colored Republicans, adjourned last evening, having accomplished nothing further than disgracing themselves by their conduct while here. The meeting began in a row, developed into a mob, and there is no telling how it might have ended had not the superintendent of police been called upon to detail officers to attend the convention. The demeanor of the leaders all the way through the meeting indicated that they had no interest in what might be done, only so far as it benefited them personally. It was never the Democratic party, but sell the vote, that inspired whatever was done. The half-dozen colored Democrats, of Indianapolis, who welcomed the delegates, became disgusted Wednesday, and the officers of the Hendricks Club, an organization which became sponsor of the convention when it first met, had to say yesterday "We have got enough." They gave the delegates notice that they could no longer occupy their rooms.

Many of those who came to attend the convention were so thoroughly disgusted with Wednesday's proceedings that they left for home that night. When yesterday's session was called to order at 10 o'clock there were only about forty delegates present. Acting Superintendent Campbell was present at the request of the more peaceable delegates, and he had with him Sergeant Sauters and Wheatley. Addressing the delegates, Campbell said that the police officers' instructions, who would remain in the room all day. To the policemen he said that if delegates so far forgot themselves as to engage in a riot, he wanted them arrested, whether they be government officers or not, and brought to the police station. At the conclusion of the Superintendent's remarks Chairman Shelton replied: "That's right, sir. If I violate the law place me in the body of your bastards."

The presence of the officers had a good effect and the session proceeded without any threats of personal violence to anyone. After the police had been regularly installed, Chairman Clark called on Elder J. K. McDaniel, of Illinois, to offer prayer. The Elder requested the delegates to join with him in singing a hymn, because they were to do it. He wanted to pray and left the hall. After some delay the prayer was made by Rev. Mitchell of Michigan. Mr. Clark then delivered his address, which had been prepared before he came here. It was quite lengthy, dwelt almost wholly on the mistreatment of the colored people in the South, and pretended to give some reasons why negroes should vote the Democratic ticket. At the conclusion of the address, T. Thomas Fortune called attention to the fact that reports were being circulated about a lack of harmony in the convention. Mr. Turner, speaking in response to the subject, said he and his followers had fought bravely and retired grandly. He wanted to do something for the Democratic party, and if the convention would give him a position he would show them what he could do.

After a number of addresses had been offered, Mr. Fortune, of New York, chairman of the committee on resolutions, submitted a report. The resolutions indorsed President Cleveland and his free-trade message to Congress. They stated the convention occurred in all the States that were done at St. Louis convention, and pledged the support of the delegates to the Democratic national ticket. Symathy with the Irish in their efforts to secure the right to rule themselves was expressed, and an endorsement of the proposition that the federal government reimburse the defrauded depositors of the defunct Freedman's Saving and Trust Association.

The resolutions were strongly opposed by Mr. Simpson, of Pennsylvania, and the remainder of the delegates made such threats against him that he left the hall, and did not return. After a great deal of discussion and wrangling it was decided to appoint a national Democratic committee, composed of one member from each of the States, to name their representative. The convention then adjourned until 3:30 o'clock.

It was nearly 4 o'clock before the meeting recommenced. Chairman Clark stated that it had been published in all the papers of the country that fifteen delegates to the convention had called on General Harrison. He denounced the statement as a falsehood. A long discussion ensued over a resolution, presented by Taylor, of Kansas City, thanking the people of Indianapolis, the Hendricks Club and the press for courtesies extended to them. J. Gordon Street, of Boston, opposed the plan. He thought the Indianapolis News should be made an exception, because, as he alleged, it had not treated the convention fairly. Some of the delegates thought the Journal should also be left out, but Mr. Street thought his report was not objectionable. Turner thought the convention should send its compliments to the Journal and News for the assistance they had rendered, and the resolutions were adopted. Mr. Street alone voting against them.

Turner and Clark were ended, and many of the delegates were therefore considerably surprised when P. V. Anderson, of Pennsylvania, introduced a resolution making J. Milton Turner chairman of the national Democratic committee to be selected. The resolution threw the Clark followers into a state of excitement, and the same nearness a repetition of the scenes of Wednesday. The Clark men declared that the convention could not name the chairman of the committee, because it had not yet been appointed, and on that occasion there was an attempt to name Fremont, of Virginia, declared that Turner was the only man who could influence any Virginia Democrats. Said he: "You might as well try to lift this building on your shoulders as to carry a bird as to try to preach Democracy to the colored men of the South." The remark was resented by several delegates, and seeing there was going to be trouble, Anderson, at the request of Turner, withdrew his motion. The States were then called for the naming of the national committee. The following were selected: District of Columbia, L. B. Rouse; Illinois, C. H. Shelton; Indiana, W. T. Scott; Iowa, Charles Curtis; Kansas, Frank Boyd; Kentucky, J. A. Ross; Massachusetts, C. H. Plummer; Michigan, Geo. H. Moore; Missouri, J. Milton Turner; New York, Henry F. Downey; Ohio, R. A. Jones; Pennsylvania, F. A. Anderson; South Carolina, P. A. Clements; Tennessee, H. C. Smith; Virginia, G. W. Fisher.

James Vena, of Missouri, was made a member of the committee but declined to serve, and J. Milton Turner was appointed. He refused to be a member of the committee, and the ground was there was no need for one. "It has been charged that we were for sale," said he, "and the appointment of this committee looks like it. I do not see the necessity for any committee at all. The convention at St. Louis appointed a national committee, and as a Democrat I say that one is good enough for me. I think the white committee is good enough for me. I do not want a black committee."

As soon as the names of the committee were announced, Anderson, of Pennsylvania, renewed his resolution making Turner its chairman. Turner's old enemy, Taylor, of Kansas City, was immediately on his feet, and moved that the convention adjourn sine die. All the delegates went on their feet in a moment, and the mingled cries of "Yes" and "No" made it impossible to hear anything the chairman said. A Kentucky delegate grew very boisterous in his threats to whip some one in the rear part of the room, and would not be quieted until the chairman told him he would send the "brass buttons" after him if he did not behave. When quiet had been restored Turner asked when the national committee would meet in case there was an adjournment. "Never," said several delegates. "That's the reason we want to adjourn," said Taylor; "we want to kill your committee." Chairman Clark still more increased the uneasiness of Turner by stating that in case of an adjournment he (Clark) would have the authority to call the committee together. The vote was taken, and resulted in twenty-eight against adjournment and seventeen for it.

The enemies of Turner then tried new tactics. R. A. Jones, of Ohio, hurried to the speaker's desk, and in a loud voice announced that he had something of great importance to say to the convention. All listened attentively as he said: "I have just received a message from a man high up in the Democratic party telling me that it is now being telegraphed all over the country that we are demanding money from the Democratic national committee before we will put our committee in the field. We are going to be disgraced, and I therefore move that we reconsider the resolution by which that committee was appointed."

"Read your telegram," "You haven't got any,"

THE COURTS MUST DECIDE

Part of the Dudley's Unfinished Track Taken by the Citizens' Company.

Some Strong Circumstantial Evidence that Tom Johnson Is Interested in Railway Building Under the New Charter.

The controversy between the Citizens' street-railway and the Dudley company reached a crisis yesterday. On Wednesday the ties and company along East Market street, between Pennsylvania and the Circle. This was the beginning of the trouble. The Citizens' company, yesterday, went to work in putting down track on the southeast part of the Circle, between Meridian and Market streets, and at 6 o'clock last evening reached the unfinished terminus of the Dudley line. Here its officers claimed right of way, on the ground that the money for the Dudley work was being furnished by Tom Johnson, and that no evidence could be produced that the Dudley work was being done according to the ordinance, which required the deposit of a check as a guarantee of good faith. It is true there is a check for $50,000 in Fletcher & Churchman's bank, say the officers of the Citizens' company, but there is nothing to indicate that it belongs to the Dudley company. It is signed by U. P. Hammond, secretary and treasurer, but does not state in what company he holds those positions. It is therefore argued by the Citizens' people that the ordinance has not been altogether complied with, and leaves the Dudley people just in the position they were before their officers attached their signatures to the acceptance. The check, it is assumed, comes from Johnson, who has no rights to the street and is trying to work under an ordinance granted to another company. It is said by the Dudley people that their money for the work comes from the sale of bonds; but, say the Citizens' officials, if that is the case there must be a record of the fact here, which cannot be produced. Again, it is urged that a sale of bonds necessarily carries with it a mortgage on property, and the Dudley company has none in lines. If the stockholders have paid in, that fact, too, could be forthcoming, but it does not appear. Hence the Citizens' claim is an undisputed right to the street and to the center of them, from which the Dudley company is restrained by process of court until a hearing can be had before the judges on Saturday.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the management of the latter company shows more disposition than ever to put down its lines and check the work of the Dudley company.

The Dudley company yesterday, through its attorneys, appeared before Judge Taylor, and asked for a modification of the restraining order, in so far as to restrain the old company from entering upon the territory while the restraining was still upon the defendants. The court decided that the defendants must make a clearing, and file a bond. Action was suspended until 10 o'clock in the afternoon, to give the necessary time, but it was decided to await the time originally set by the court. No work was done by the Dudley company during the day upon any of the city streets. This was the position of affairs when the large body of the Citizens' company's employees began operations upon the Dudley company's half-finished track. Work was begun on the Market-street division, and, laying aside the loose ties and rails, there was laid in their places ties and rails of the Citizens' company. The rails were laid in the